Listen to your body: being sore is normal and the best thing to do is keep moving; being injured is a completely different beast and you should let your body rest. Know the difference! Training on varied terrain makes small muscles, tendons and ligaments stronger, improves stabilization, and might lessen the chance for injury in the long term. Please note that our courses this year include several miles on trails and on the beach so try to train on those surfaces at least once a week if possible. No beach around? Trails and even gravel roads will help you get ready for the good stuff!
